

On a Revo phone system, the following type of calls will be completely free of call charges:

- Head office to branch office within the UK
- Head office to overseas branch office
- Office to home worker
- Office to mobile user (3G smartphone with an appropriate app.)

How does it work?

In a conventional phone system you would expect “internal” calls (extension-to-extension) to be free of charge.

This is true of “extensions” within a Revo package. The difference is that the Revo phones are connected via the Internet, and it doesn’t matter where in the world the phones are.

So, all calls within an organisation, whether they are to the next desk in the same office, or across the world to a branch office in the Far East, or to a roaming smartphone, are free.

